What's on 2019

Overview

About the Conference

The availability of land and effective planning systems have a major impact on the ability of housing associations to deliver quality affordable homes and to create high quality environments and communities where people choose to live.

This conference will examine the opportunities that the new Planning Bill and Land Reform provide to increase the supply of affordable housing both now and in the future.

This joint SFHA and SURF conference will look at the new Planning Bill and the work of the Scottish Land Commission and ask, how will these changes affect developing housing associations and can they help us increase the delivery of quality affordable homes?

Delegates at the conference will hear first hand from SFHA on new measures introduced in the Planning Bill that aim to help increase the supply of affordable housing – including a provision for Land Value Capture and a requirement that the National Planning Framework sets a housing target.

There will also be a talk by SURF Chief Executive Andy Milne on the work SURF are doing with the Scottish Land Commission looking at the development of land by communities.

Benefits of Attending

There will be the chance to hear from experts on

- Early engagement of communities in plans, especially hard to reach communities
- The potential of Compulsory Sales Orders to unlock land for housing development
- Support available to develop better housing schemes including green infrastructure, master planning and the provision of paths to encourage active transport
